General Information

One can still see 13th century remnants in this medieval church including “the porch” which is all that remains of the ancient tower and a blocked up south doorway in the nave. Most windows are of Perpendicular design. Although very little stained glass remains two gorgeous angels in a north nave window clearly illustrate the skills of the 15th century Norwich school of glass painting.

North Nave Window 2

In the tracery lights we see figures dating from the 15th century. The two females standing facing each other are St Elizabeth (wearing veil) and the Virgin Mary in a Vistiation scene. The figures are flanked by two beautiful feathered angels, one playing a trumpet and the other a harp. The outer eyelets retain parts of their original decoration whilst the heads of the main lights have pinnaced canopy tops.

East Window

The window contains 19th century quarry panes painted with fleur de lys.

Norwich Historic Church Trust preserves our Medieval Church Heritage for future generations.
